

This TWO-DAY course is ideal for those who facilitate engagement activities and want to build their range of techniques for different audiences.

Apply Engagement Methods

Your Trainer
Joel Levin

Aim

To introduce a variety of different methods for different engagement processes and introduce the Methods Matrix which profiles more than 60 combined face-to-face and online engagement methods.

Objectives

- Introduce learners to a variety of engagement methods for use in a range of contexts and select appropriate methods for different engagement requirements
- Design a process for a scenario including question design
- Apply key elements of effective method selection and design to a scenario
- Complete a template for method design
- Apply an element of the method process to test effectiveness according to a quality checklist
- Be able to justify the choice of methods to decision-makers/sponsors
- Ensure the methods chosen and designed meet DEI principles and First Nations peoples' needs.

Learning Outcomes

- Increased knowledge of the different methods available for engagement
- Increased confidence in utilising some of the methods
- Build knowledge of how to select, design and deliver an appropriate method for use in a range of contexts
- Knowledge of how to design relevant and effective questions

Benefits

- Explore how to shape the engagement approach
- Provide tools to build the participation of organisations and communities and create commitment to action for better outcomes
- Examine the issues arising from a case example nominated by participants
- Templates provided in e-form for later use.
